MARRIAGES

MACKAY—DENER.

St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a pretty and impressive wedding this morning when Mr. Terrance F. Mackay and Miss Mamie Diener were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. Father P. M. Jones officiating.

The bride was gowned in a handsome tailor-made traveling suit while the groom wore the conventional black, and as they stood at the altar taking the sacred marriage vows, presented a beautiful picture of young manhood and young womanhood.

The bride is the accomplished and charming daughter of Mr. George Diener. The groom is the eldest son of ex-Sheriff and Mrs. James Mackay and is an exceedingly popular and worthy young man. The attendants were Mr. George Diener, brother of the bride, and Mr. John T. Mackay, brother of the groom.

The happy couple left on the morning C. & O. train on a bridal trip and on their return will take up their residence in a pretty cottage corner of Limestone and Fifth streets.

The Ledger joins their many friends in extending felicitations, a long life and a happy one.

TO SLEEP UNTIL THE RESURRECTION MORN

The remains of the late Mrs. Thomas A. Davis were tenderly and beautifully laid to rest yesterday afternoon in the Davis family lot, in the Maysville Cemetery, after brief, but touching services at the home, beginning at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. F. Taylor of Covington, a former beloved Pastor and neighbor of deceased, delivered an eloquent sermon, which was appropriate and helpful. Rev. M. S. Clark, Pastor of the First M. E. Church South, assisted and ended the simple service at the graveside, which was crowned and covered by a bank of floral and evergreen, silent but loving tribute to this good and much-loved woman.

Following were the pall bearers: First carriage: C. C. Caithron, H. C. Carran and A. F. Curran; with the Pastor, Rev. M. S. Clark.

Second carriage: J. Foster Barbour, E. A. Robison, James E. Threlkeld and B. W. Goodman.

Thus ended the mortal years of a woman who cheered the way of life and whose career is a lasting blessing to her beloved family and her adopted city.

We needed the protective tariff, first, to enable us to build the factory. Now that we have the factory running, we need a protective tariff to protect the American market and the laborer who is working in this American factory; and we will continue to need it until the American laborer is willing to work for the low wages paid the foreign laborer.

Republican protection not only protects, it builds up. It gives employ to American workmen. It secures to Americans the control of the markets of their own country. It affords to American labor a standard of wages far above the wages of any other people under the sun.

The only thing that is made clear by the examination of Mr. Morgan's testimony is that the eminent financier thought more of Col.
Roosevelt in 1904 than he did of Mr. Taft in 1908. Or, perhaps, the decimation of his liberality was due solely to the fact that Mr.
Roosevelt had more aggressive solicitors than had Mr. Taft.—Washington Post.

Taft and the Republican platform is endorsed by Henry Cabot Lodge, Roosevelt's favorite Senator and confidential advisor during his whole administration. Taft and his platform is endorsed by Governor Hadley, of Missouri, Roosevelt's floor leader in the Republican Convention at Chicago, also by Senator Borah, the great Roosevelt champion in the Convention, and by Senator La Follette, the great Progressive leader, and hundreds of others who supported Roosevelt for the nomination.

Next Wednesday, October 9, will be the

THE BULL MOOSE AT BAY.

"A Bull Moose at Bay" is the title of a Bryan editorial in the Commoner. He says:

"A while after his nomination Mr. Roosevelt plunged around, charging everything in sight, but he has at last commenced to show signs of pain. The arrows of the enemy have pierced the skin. He is explaining Mr. Perkins' support, the Harriman letter, the swallowing up of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company and his inactivity on the trust question.

"His actions do not explain, but the fact that he is now on the defensive shows that he feel he is losing ground. The rank and file of the new party are honest men, earnest men, and they can not, when they understand the program, endorse the Perkins-Roosevelt scheme to make trusts prominent. That may be good for Mr. Perkins' children, but it would not be good for the children of the rest of us."

PLAN CUT OUT 1913 TOBACCO

Organization Formed In Ken- tucky To Increase Price Of Tobacco

APPEAL TO OTHER STATES

To Co-operate With Growers of Kentucky In Their Effort to Obtain Living Prices for the Product of their Land and Labor.

AN APPEAL TO FARMERS:

On October 1st, there met in the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington, Ky., a small band of farmers from less than a dozen counties. They met for the purpose of discussing a cut out of the 1913 tobacco crop.

On account of the busy season many large producing counties were not represented, but several of them sent encouraging messages. After due deliberation it was agreed to organize the "Burly Protective Society" and to push the cut out movement for all it is worth.

Mass conventions were advised for the various counties on Saturday, October 12, and a general convention of the growers at Lexington, Ky., was ordered for Wednesday, October 16th. The county mass conventions are to select delegates to represent them at the general convention on the 16th.

A committee, composed of representatives from Bath, Franklin, Scott and Owen counties, was selected for the purpose of preparing "An Appeal" to growers, and the following is the result of their labors:

AN APPEAL TO FARMERS.

Never since the tobacco question became an acute issue has the situation presented a more serious or menacing front to growers than the one they are now facing. For the first time since 1906 the farmers are wholly unorganized. A pool, for the present, is out of the question. Single handed and alone they must face the enemy, combined, tactful and greedy, and il-lenced by the highest law of the land to continue their gains of wolf while dressed in the garb of lamb.

There is no protection for the farmer other than that which he himself provides. Although he is numbered by the tens of thousands, and the buyers can be numbered by the tens of thousands on one hand, yet this mighty host must bow in humble submission before the haughty oligarchy, and accept the crumbs from its hands.

If the market were free and competitive, if the law of supply and demand had not been suspended by the trust arbitrarily fixing prices, the growers could have some reasonable assurance of fair dealing and living prices. But there is no such market, and the law of supply and demand is nothing but a shadow.

Let us look the facts squarely in the face. Here are just a few:

The 1905 crop averaged less than 7 cents.

In 1906 first pool organized.

In 1907, over 62,000,000 pounds added to first pool.

In 1908, crop practically cut out.

In November, 1908, Burley Tobacco Society sells its entire holdings at 17 cents. Mind you, this was after the cut out of that year.

In 1909, over 100,000 pounds pooled —more than both pools of 1906 and 1907.

In 1910 and 1911, two crops grown and neither pooled. Average net price to growers in 1909, 7½ cents; in 1910, 7 cents; in 1911, about 7½ cents.

In 1910, when the pooling movement was hanging in the balance, representatives of the trust and warehouses killed it dead as a mackerel by paying 12 to 14 cents to certain large growers and wealthy land owners scattered throughout the Blue Grass section.

Immediately following the failure of the 1910 pool, the American Tobacco company publicly proclaimed its determination to buy the crop at 8 cents.
History shows that it made its word good, with an extra cent added to the profit side of its ledger. In the suit of the Eshelby Tobacco company against the Burley Tobacco Society, it alleges that burley tobacco is only worth 8 cents a pound, and in that suit it asked that the society be compelled to refund the difference between 8 cents and 17 cents. These declarations on the part of the manufacturers show clearly their purpose and determination to make 8 cents the maximum figure. They are willing to pay the growers, but a certain amount of business acumen (alleged possibly by innate baseness) has so far prevented them from naming a minimum price they are willing to pay, and which they frequently pay, for this same tobacco.

There is not an intelligent, well-to-do farmer in this state who is willing to grow tobacco at such prices, and under such conditions as above set out. It costs more to grow it now than it did ten years ago. Land, labor and all material that figure in the growth of tobacco have advanced during that period from 50 to 100 per cent. The price of everything we eat and wear has increased in like proportions. If 7 and 1/2 cents were living prices ten years ago (and they were not) then 16 to 17 cents is not too much to demand now. Farmers must get some thing like this if they expect to prosper.

But the one thing which this committee desires to impress on the growers is the importance of organization.

However plain the facts, nothing can be accomplished without it. In our judgment, the only thing for us to do now is to urge a cut out of the next crop. We know positively that it was the cut out of 1908 that saved the life of the growers against the trust. We knew it was the cut out that made us a price 17 cents, and we know there is a vast difference between 7 cent tobacco and 17 cent tobacco. We know there is more clear profit in one crop at 14 cents, than there is in three crops at 8, or even 9 cents, for we firmly believe that these figures mean an actual loss to both tenants and landlords.

We have faith in the good sense and patriotism of the people, and make an earnest appeal for due and careful consideration of this question.

We also realize that the work must be done speedily in order to thwart our enemies, who, if this movement grows in popular favor, will again send their agents into the field to pay handsome prices to a favored few, and thus pull the majority into a hopeful but false confidence that they too, will get this good price.

In order to arrive at the will of the people, we urge the people of each county to hold mass conventions on Saturday, October 12, and that they select delegates to attend the Lexington convention on Wednesday, October 16th.

If the movement does not gather sufficient strength by this date to indicate that a successful fight can be made, then we know of nothing further to suggest, and the growers must be left alone, each to fight his own battles.

(The above report was adopted, and is ordered printed.)

A. W. WALDEN, Chairman, Owingsville, Ky.

"PLAYING THE GAME."

Truly, President Taft Does Not Follow System Politically.

That is a criticism often heard of President Taft. It is the professional politician usually who voices it, but often it is repeated by those who are accustomed to take their estimates of public men and their political opinions from others.

Playing the game has been the occupation of time serving politicians from time immemorial. Men who regard politics as a game like to see it played deftly. Other men without fixed ideas on the subject parrot the criticism put out by the experts.

Playing the game in politics necessarily has deceit as its fundamental principle.

The public man who sees developing an issue that might prove embarrassing to him personally, and who manages, by guile, to divert public attention to another, a lesser, but perfectly safe, issue, plays the game.

The public man who makes public protestations of his enmity toward swollen wealth and then holds secret conferences with the representatives of that wealth, plays the game.

The public man who preaches one code of political morality and practices another plays the game.

The public man who utters sounding but empty phrases, no matter how delightful his diction or how superb his eloquence, plays the game.

The public man who makes promises impossible of fulfillment plays the game.

The public man who puts the acquisition of public favor above ideals of public service plays the game.

Truly, President Taft does not know how to play the game.

He has been reared in an atmosphere of service rather than politics, as we have come to know politics. The thing that has always concerned him is the doing of an act, not the spectacular staging of it, nor the exploitation of it, nor, on the contrary, the concealment of it.

To serve has always been his ideal, not merely to acquire the appearance of serving.

It has been impossible for him to look upon public service as a game.

The public's business, as he regards it, is serious business.

There is reason for the belief that the American people as a whole share with him this view. The growing intelligence of the nation is rejecting the idea that the selection of their public servants is merely a sporting proposition.

GUYING A BOMBPROOF.

The southern soldiers had little respect for what were known as "bomproof," the fellows who had easy positions in the rear. On one occasion a smartly dressed young officer belonging to this kindred cantered up to a depot where a regiment of men were awaiting transfer. As soon as they saw him they began guying him.

The Richmond Climax, of Wednesday, says: "The farm of Mr. C. M. Clay, containing 502 acres, known as a part of the John D. Harris estate, which was offered for sale publicly Thursday, was taken down, the highest bid being $79 per acre, and was offered by Mr. Green Igo."

TAKES A SHOT

At Arboreal Representatives in the Front Yard of the Capitol of Kentucky

Editor Public Ledger.

Each county of Kentucky is to be called upon to need a tree to be planted in the front yard of the Capitol grounds, that our children's children may know something about the various kinds of trees that Kentucky once possessed in such great abundance, which were slain—some for the good they might do as available timber, and some simply that they might no longer cumber the ground; but might be of some value as rotten mould or ashes that would give some help towards fructifying the soil.

Fourth—That the corn be improved by selecting for the average farm, say 100 of the best ears, and planting them on one side of the cornfield. The seed for the following crop to be selected in the fall from the part of the field where the best seed was planted.

Of course, this is a good idea—an idea of which we may not complain in a general way.

The Commission appointed to ask the counties for a tree contribution however, assume to dictate what kind of a tree each county may send, and have called upon Mason county to contribute—what do you think?—a buckeye tree. The audacity of the request is appalling. A buckeye tree from one of the most historic counties of the state! If they were to call for horses, would he justified in sending mules? Will some one tell why is the buckeye anyway? And to be selected as our representative in tree-conservation or rather tree-rejuvenation. It certainly shows poor appreciation of the value of the many trees which were indigenous to the county of Mason, the many varieties of the oak, the sugar tree and maple, the cherries, the hickories, the butternut and the walnut, the chestnut, the thorn trees, one of which, the locust was made into posts, hubs of wheels and railway ties; the dogwood, the beeches, the elms, the planes, the willows,—one variety of which might emphasize our grief because of the departed forests of our youth—the mulberries, giving food to both men and the silk worms—that is black for man, the white for the worm—and various other trees too numerous to mention—and yet the Commission calls for a buckeye tree! Why, the buckeye, instead of being the representative of Mason county trees, ought to be selected to be called a tree.

Let's see. Some years ago a portion of several counties was set apart for a new county; but it was discovered in time that a portion of the land set apart was located in Ohio, so if you must have a buckeye tree in the Capitol grounds, let the Ohio part of the unbroken county send it.

Now if you want a real, simple, pure and historical tree to represent the county of Mason, I offer the suggestion that the most appropriate one should be the one described in a foreign encyclopedia, as follows:

"Gymnocladus, a genus of trees of the natural order Leguminosae, sub order Cesalpiniaceae.

G. Canadensis is a North American tree found both in Canada and over a great part of the United States, attaining a height of 50 to 60 feet, with branches remarkable for their upright direction, and an exceedingly rough bark, which comes off in shreds. The leaves of the young trees are very large, three feet long, bipinnate. The leaves are white, in short spikes. The tree is called cladodendron, and sometimes stump tree, from its dead appearance in winter, and the absence of conspicuous buds. The pods are five inches long by two broad. It is also called the Kentucky Coffee tree, because the seeds were formerly roasted and ground as coffee in Kentucky. It grows well in Britain. The wood is used both by cabinet makers and by carpenters. It has very little sapwood. The pods, preserved like those of the tamarind, are said to be wholesome and slightly aperient."

Thus writes an editor of a foreign cyclopedias:

"Chambers. I know of my own knowledge a use to which the green pods were put in the earlier days. They were bruised and stewed into a mucilaginous mass, looking like thick gumbo soup, which was placed into a flat saucer, a savory mess for flies, eating which they were speedily exterminated. We need this tree now, if not to use the seeds as coffee, than to make a dish of fly killer. Flies are recognized as something more than a nuisance, the absence of which is as strongly recommended by Dr. Grant, the Health Officer of Kentucky's metropolis, whose ancestors and mine living at 'Grant's Station,' in the eighteenth century, need the seeds of the Coffee Tree both as a fly killer when green and as coffee when ripe."

So let us one and all, true Mason countians, demand that the authorities shall make a change in their request for a tree to plant in the Capitol reserve, and leave it to us to send a tree that will truly represent the good old county—"the Garden of Eden," as named by Simon Kenton, who doubtless drank the coffee, but was too busy looking out for Indians to bother with fly-killing. He thought the Indians greater than flies—and so they were then; but now the Indians—thanks to the early settlers—are gone; but the flies remain.

Let the slogan be: "Down with the buckeye, up with the coffee tree."

Three Good Pals

Breakfast time should be the "curtain raiser" of a happy day.

But the day can't be a happy one with ill health.

Coffee is often a disturbing factor.

It contains a drug—caffiene—that gets on the nerves of many a naturally happy-tempered man or woman, resulting in "crossness" and irritability.

But now comes

Instant Postum

which is absolutely free from any drug.

This new food-drink makes "good company" at breakfast or any other meal. Manufactured from choice Northern wheat and the juice of pure Southern sugar-cane, it is prepared at table instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful, direct from the tin, in a cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste. Everyone can drink it with happy results.

It's a Pity

Clothing can't be told as to its value, like whisky, coffee, coal oil or sugar; then when an honest, yet good boy or man wants to buy a suit, and wants it at a fair price, he would be afraid of being called a fool, and one, though he might be himself a merchant, can advertise 25 suits for $3.98. Anyou, even though he might call himself a man, can say, but, like a commoner, that he is not a merchant, and can't afford the best in men, in that very few know his real value, and some salesmen and proprietors are tempted to take advantage of this. Merchandise is crooked, men are all black eyes. Let us one day of any Mayville merchant that they are reasonable, and should be so for the sake of the public, and when you do this, you will be sure of his price, you will do us a great favor, to return and get your money, giving us an opportunity to not only make a reasonable profit, but also a satisfaction for our money back, and keeping up to high ideal of clean methods of selling clothing the Twentieth Century to an intelligent community.

DR. PERRYMAN

Opens Revival at Meeting at First Baptist Church—Tonight: "Jonah"

The revival at the First Baptist Church began in earnest last evening when Dr. G. W. Perryman of Norfolk, Va., preached his first sermon to a large and appreciative audience.

Dr. Perryman read as a lesson the last chapter of Paul's letter to the Ephesians, the principal theme of which is fighting against sin in high places. In the course of reading Dr. Perryman said it was a noisy matter for officers of the law to jump on the crap shooters, but it was quite a different thing to go after the big gamblers.

He also took for illustration the 6,000,000 Baptists in the United States. He said they were all Baptists, but how many of this number were good Baptists.

The sermon throughout was very interesting and you will miss something good if you do not attend each service.

Preaching each afternoon at 3 o'clock and evening at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Perryman's subject tonight will be "Jonah." Come out and bring some one with you.

TAFT LEADS

In This Straw Vote Taken on C. & O. Train

Asland Independent.

Our fellow townsmen, Mr. T. M. Culbertson, reports a straw vote which was taken on a C. & O. train a few days ago, on which he was returning from Cincinnati. Some gentlemen on the train after a political argument, decided they would poll the men on the train and see how they stood on the question of Presidential candidates. They took the name of every man on board, and when they summed it up they found the following result: Taft 34, Wilson 29, and Roosevelt 11. This is an indication that the tide is setting in strongly for Mr. Taft.

Charles Becker was placed on trial for the alleged murder of Herman Rosenthal in New York. Only one juror was obtained out of fourteen examined.
